

Supervisor wants program by weekend

L.A. county 'odd-even' gas rationing plan unveiled

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County Supervisor James Hayes today announced a voluntary gasoline distribution plan for the county—based in part on Oregon's "odd-even" gas rationing program.

Hayes said he would take the plan to the county Energy Commission Wednesday and then back to the Board of Supervisors for possible adoption Thursday.

The supervisor said the distribution plan, involving motorists, service stations and gas wholesalers, is "designed to end the chaotic panic buying now draining our service stations dry."

If adopted, the county would join areas in 10 states and the District of Columbia that have voluntary or mandatory gas rationing.

As in Oregon, the county program would provide that motorists with license plates ending in odd numbers (1-3-5-7-9) or for personalized plates ending in A through L, be sold gasoline on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Motorists with plates ending in even numbers or letters M through Z would buy gas on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Hayes said he hoped to get the program working by this weekend to prevent a recurrence of the panic buying and scattered violence that plagued Southern California service stations last weekend.

If the program fails to get voluntary cooperation from the county's 78 cities, Hayes said he would ask Gov. Ronald Reagan to grant the county emergency enforcement powers.

Other provisions of the program include:

—No gasoline would be sold on Sunday except at special "emergency service stations" which would be located five miles apart.

—Commercial vehicles would be served on any day but would be encouraged to follow the license plate schedule.

—Motorists would be required to buy a maximum of five gallons of gas to prevent the practice of "topping off" their gas tanks.

—Stations would be required to stay open until they had sold all of their daily allotment in all grades of gasoline.

—Stations will display 10-inch disc signs—green for times when gas is available and red when it is not.

Hopes high

Nixon to send Kissinger back to end stall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced after conferring with two Arab foreign ministers today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would make a new trip to the Middle East to help get troop disengagement talks under way between Israel and Syria.

The President met for nearly an hour and a half with Egypt's Ismail Fahmy and Saudi Arabia's Omar Sakkaf in the Oval Office.

Afterward, while standing in the Rose Garden, Nixon said he had asked Kissinger to go back to the Middle East "where he will meet with Syrian and Israeli officials with the objective of getting talks started" on the disengagement of forces in the Golan Heights area.

Nixon did not mention any discussion during the meeting of the prospect of lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States, but said the discussions covered a broad area of mutual concerns.

Sakkaf later told reporters, "We're hopeful something will happen soon for the benefit of the Middle East, the United States and the world as a whole."

He appeared to be hinting of a possible break in the oil boycott in the future.

There have been numerous clashes along the Golan Heights area between Israeli and Syrian troops since Kissinger helped arrange Israel-Egyptian disengagement. Syria has made clear it wants to keep Israel off balance by the military incidents.

A new clash was reported today, with Damascus claiming to have inflicted casualties on an Israeli patrol.

The Arab Big Four disengagement proposal was said to have been agreed to at a meeting in Algiers last week. Without specifying details, Fahmy told reporters, "It was a unanimous decision... We believe it was a very positive decision."

He added that "everything is moving in the right direction ... (with) progress on every front."

A reporter asked Nixon whether there had been any discussion of the lifting of the oil embargo. He walked away without answering the question.

Nixon gave no date for Kissinger's next trip—his fourth to the Middle East. Kissinger flies to Mexico City Wednesday for a meeting with Latin American foreign ministers Thursday, Friday and Saturday. He is expected to begin a Damascus-Jerusalem shuttle sometime next week.

Nixon said, "We believe steps should now be taken to get talks started between Syria and Israel on disengagement. We discussed matters of mutual concern on permanent peace which is the goal of all the governments there."

"Our goal is not to just have a temporary settlement but a permanent settlement and to have normal diplomatic relations with all countries in the area," the President said.

Valley gas pumps running dry

By LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

As fuel-starved motorists flocked to the gas pumps to fill up after a long, dry holiday weekend, dealers in the Pomona Valley generally forecast a tight supply for March.

Uniformly, all service stations surveyed today said their daily quotas of gas were emptied into fuel tanks within a short time, while one Diamond Bar Exxon dealer reported that he expects his pumps to run dry today—even though he received a delivery Friday and was closed Saturday through Monday.

Throughout the Los Angeles basin the story is the same. United Press International reports motorists were stranded by the hundreds Monday as they came home after the long holiday. The Automobile Club of Southern California received more than 350 calls from drivers with no gas, while the Los Angeles headquarters of the California Highway Patrol said it was getting more than 15 such calls per minute at peak.

Most dealers in the valley said they have been dividing their monthly allotments of gas into a daily quota and operating their pumps only while that supply lasts. "When it's gone, I shut the pumps off," remarked Chuck Lorrain, owner of Chuck's Arco, at La Verne Avenue and Garey Avenue in Pomona.

Lorrain said he expects his allotment to rise slightly in March, because he sold more in that month last year. But more of the other dealers surveyed expected to get any more next month.

"This is a rotten business to be in, put it that way," said Norm Chamberlain, owner of Norm & Son's Exxon, 350 S. Diamond Bar Blvd., Diamond Bar. "The allotment has been cut so bad, it's pathetic." He said his allotment is 78 per cent of last year's February sales, and that March will not improve.

"In this Diamond Bar area, that's a drop in the bucket. Most of the people here are salesmen, they drive everywhere. I got delivery Friday," said Chamberlain, "and I figure I'll be out today, the way things are going." He was closed Saturday through Monday.

Bob Vermeer, of John & Bob's Mobil, 13310 Euclid Ave., Ontario, noted this morning, "We could have sold a lot of gas today." But he has no gas to sell.

Although he expects a delivery Friday, Vermeer doesn't expect to sell much fuel anyhow. "They don't tell you until the last minute how much to expect," he said of March deliveries. He said he goes about two weeks without fuel.

Charles Crossland, owner of B&B Gulf Service, 775 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland, stated that he has been told to expect some more fuel in March, but he doesn't believe it. "It was suggested we might get some more this month, but we didn't," he said ruefully.

While customers have generally been cooperative at the stations, no one is sure who to blame for the problem.

A group of about 50 demonstrators marched through downtown Los Angeles and rallied at the headquarters of the Union Oil Co. Monday.

Independent truck driver Jim Griffen, a rally speaker, said the fuel shortage "is not real, it's a Nixon administration ripoff, and I don't know how long we are going to sit around and take it before we do something about it."

"Obviously, it's a get-rich-quick scheme by the big oil companies, and it's created to put the independent businessman out of business while the big man gets bigger," he said.

The Internal Revenue Service said it had investigated about 850 complaints of price gouging during the holiday weekend, and that in many cases there was no infraction.

Mitchell, Stans ask dismissal, change of venue as trial opens

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and his codefendant, ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, at the start of their perjury and conspiracy trial in federal court, today requested that all charges against them be dismissed.

They also sought change of venue because of pretrial publicity which Stan's attorney, John P. Diuguid, said was created by the government.

"We might even say that the government has orchestrated" this publicity, Diuguid told presiding Judge Lee Gagliardi, who reserved decision.

Diuguid quoted from a number of recent newspaper articles—one of which referred to Stans as "smart and rich, a man with a reputation for unscrupulousness"—and asked: "How can any impartial person in New York be impartial as he approaches this trial?"

Both Mitchell and Stans were in the courtroom at the time and followed the proceedings intently.

Stan's attorney also noted that a number of indictments are expected to be filed in Washington once the jury here is sequestered and said Mitchell and Stans reportedly are targets of those indictments.

Gagliardi, in reserving decision on the defense requests, noted that the extent of prejudice caused by Watergate could not be determined until prospective jurors are examined.

Simon may tap nation's gas stockpiles to ease shortage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is prepared to tap the nation's gasoline stockpiles to ease the auto fuel shortages in large metropolitan areas—especially the northeast.

Energy chief William E. Simon is expected to order all firms to draw down on their gasoline inventories rather than, as some have urged, shift gasoline from states with an excess to states with shortages.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., meanwhile, predicted today's vote on the much rewritten, often-delayed emergency energy bill will be "a very close vote, a razor thin edge at this time. It could go either way."

Other senators predicted, during floor debate Monday, that Americans would be rioting and acting like animals soon if Congress doesn't act quickly on a solution to the current gasoline shortage.

According to the Federal Energy Office's Petroleum Situation Report, refineries have stockpiled more than 200 million barrels of gasoline—a close to normal amount for this time of year.

The stocks could be "drawn down to 180 million barrels without serious trouble," an energy official said.

The most severe shortages are reported in states such as New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Florida and Virginia. On the West Coast, Washington and Oregon also are pinched for gas.

Energy officials have apparently ruled out the idea of shifting gasoline from one state to another "because it creates hard feelings and stirs up politicians," the official said. "The intelligent way to handle the shortage is to use the gasoline stockpile."

Today's vote in the Senate is on whether to send the much-stalled energy bill back to House-Senate conferees for major changes.

Only need wall socket to fill up new compact

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — Sebring Vanguard, Inc. announced plans Monday for the mass production of an electric automobile that can be recharged by plugging it into a wall socket.

Vanguard said it hoped to build 2,000 of the cars this year. It will be the first electric car since World War I.

The Vanguard is eight feet long and can travel at top speed of 30 miles per hour for 50 miles before it needs recharging, company officials said. It is priced at $2,200.

Robert Stone, marketing director for the firm, said the electric vehicle is designed as a second car for urban driving and not as a competitor for internal combustion engine cars. Stone said he has been driving one for several weeks.

"It's smog free and silent and when I need a fill-up I just stick a plug in the wall," Stone said. "I think it's the car of the future."

People laughed at the Volkswagen when it was brought to this country back in the early 1950s, but now you see them everywhere."

WON'T ACCEPT HEARST FOOD

Pat Stark, left, and Dorothy Mendall display signatures of 6,000 welfare recipients who refuse to accept any food or money for food to be provided by Randolph Hearst as a goodwill gesture to the Symbionese Liberation Army, captors of his daughter, Patricia. Signatures were collected upstate.

Hearst: up to kidnapers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Publisher Randolph A. Hearst's "good will gesture" of a $2 million food giveaway plan brought no immediate response today from the kidnappers of his daughter, Patricia.

Hearst planned to reveal more details of the giveaway program for the needy demanded by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army before negotiations can begin for release of Miss Hearst, the granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst publishing empire.

The family waited at their Hillsborough mansion on the eve of their kidnapped daughter's 20th birthday, 15 days after she was taken from her Berkeley apartment, for an indication of whether the SLA would consider the $2 million plan, far short of the $400 million program originally demanded by Hearst's release.

"I consider this a goodwill gesture, particularly since there is no guarantee that my daughter will be released," Hearst told newsmen at the Hilton Hotel after a five-hour secret meeting with representatives of the American Indian Movement and other activist groups asked by the SLA to monitor the distribution.

"The next move is up to them," Hearst said Monday after announcing the plan, the largest payment ever offered in a kidnapping in the United States. He said the $2 million would include $500,000 of his own money, free food for an estimated 4.7 million needy Californians, which the publisher said would cost about $400 million.

Hearst said the demand was "impossible to meet" but he would make a counter proposal before today's SLA deadline for the start of food distribution. The kidnappers said later they would "accept a sincere effort" by Hearst.

The president-editor of the San Francisco Examiner said the money would be available today, but that it would take time to work out the details of the giveaway. He said the program would be administered by a charitable foundation approved by California's attorney general in order to avoid legal problems.

"You're making a mistake in believing that this is a ransom demand," Hearst told reporters. "What they're saying is, you give an expression of good will and show a desire to respond to our needs and our problems and the problems of the poor and hopefully they will respond in the manner they see fit."

Wins Ford seat in Congress

Democrat is victorious in GOP Michigan stronghold

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Riding the tide of Watergate, underdog Democrat Richard Vander Veen has ended a 62-year Republican dynasty in the congressional district represented by Vice President Gerald Ford since 1948.

Vander Veen's victory over favored Republican candidate Robert Vander Laan Monday was seen as a serious blow to the political fortunes of President Nixon and the GOP Congressional delegation.

"Everything went our way except one thing—Watergate," said State Republican Chairman William McLaughlin. "That killed us."

Vander Veen, the first Democrat elected to Congress from Michigan's traditionally conservative Fifth District since 1910, collected 53,008 votes, 50.9 per cent of the total cast, according to final unofficial tabulations.

Vander Laan, 43, a state senator since 1963, received 46,159 votes, or 44.2 per cent of the total. The remainder was split between American Independent party candidate Dwight Johnson and Socialist Labor party candidate Frank Girard.

A 51-year-old attorney defeated handily by Ford in 1958, Vander Veen had built his campaign around Watergate and other political and economic woes of the Nixon administration.

Having described the election repeatedly as "a referendum on the moral bankruptcy of Richard Nixon," Vander Veen said his victory showed clearly that "Nixon should resign."

"People want a change," he declared. "It's an expression of outrage."

At his victory party, he was frequently drowned out by chants of "Nixon Must Go."

"We're sending a message to Washington tonight," Vander Veen told hundreds of cheering supporters. "We're sending that message to two different addresses. One is to Congress. The other is to 1600 Pennsylvania."

Republicans had predicted an easy victory, expecting Vander Laan, a former high school civic teacher, to pick up at least 55 per cent of the vote. Vander Laan, who had resigned from his leadership post in the senate after winning the GOP primary Jan. 15, declined to assess his defeat. Depicting himself as his own man throughout his campaign, he had kept his distance from Watergate and Nixon.

"I've had 15 good elections and one bad one," said Vander Laan, who had outdistanced three opponents in his primary win. "That's not a bad record."

Vander Laan spoke with Ford by telephone after the returns were in and said the vice president was "more sorry than surprised" by the outcome. Ford has supported Vander Laan in the race.

Attempt at historic flight

Balloonist soars over Atlantic

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Balloonist Thomas L. Gatch soared eastward across the Atlantic Ocean toward Europe today at speeds above 100 miles per hour in an attempt to make the first manned transatlantic balloon flight in history.

Gatch was not in contact with the U.S. mainland and knowledge of his position depended on commercial aircraft and land vessels which he might contact by radio.

He was last picked up by radar at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York at 2:44 a.m., EDT, at which time he was about 100 miles east-southeast of Bermuda, traveling at speeds between 80 and 130 miles per hour at an altitude of 36,000 feet.

Gatch, 48, of Fairfax County, Va., an Army Reserve colonel and veteran of the Korean War, took off at 7:30 p.m. Monday from Harrisburg International Airport in a sealed gondola suspended from 10 helium-filled balloons.

The weather at the airport was perfect for the ascent. Strong ground winds had diminished steadily during the day and it was "dead calm" at launch time.

Gatch climbed at a rate of between 300 and 500 feet a minute and at 39,000 feet the balloons were fully inflated and he was in the jet stream, where winds are from 60 to 150 miles per hour.

He was 76 minutes into his flight and over the Atlantic Ocean when he reported hearing a "loud noise." One of the 10 balloons burst and drifted down onto his gondola, draping over one of the three portholes.

At that time, Gatch reported the portholes of the gondola, named "Light Heart," were "slightly iced over." He said the temperature inside the gondola was "comfortable" at 10 degrees, the relative humidity was 68 per cent and "oxygen and life support systems were working properly." His speed was 140 miles per hour, he said.

When the balloon burst, Gatch lost altitude but he compensated by siphoning off liquid ballast and he leveled off at 35,550 feet.

Gatch expected to sleep during the flight on a cot. His 190-pound gondola, six feet in diameter and made of fiberglass reinforced plastic and polyester resin, was expected to draw heat from the sun's rays.

Cheers like good old days for Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It almost seemed like one of the good old days for President Nixon—with thousands cheering to his clear delight as he talked of America's greatness and its desire to gain prosperity at home with peace abroad.

The outpouring of support for the President at an "Honor America Day" rally in Huntsville, Ala., apparently put him in high spirits as he returned to the White House early Monday evening with plans to get back to business quickly today after a five-day "working trip" spent mostly at Key Biscayne, Fla.

First up on Nixon's schedule was an 11 a.m. meeting with the foreign ministers of Egypt and Saudi Arabia, who have been holding talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and promised "good news" for Nixon in a message from four Arab chiefs of state.

Nixon's visit to the northern Alabama city, headquarters for much of the research in the U.S. space program, was seen as another attempt to counter the pressures of the Watergate scandal that has sent his popularity plummeting and even raised the threat of impeachment.

He got the welcome he wanted. Only a few in the crowd of about 20,000 at the rally in a big park carried signs proclaiming opposition to Nixon.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, speaking from a wheelchair when he introduced Nixon, said he wanted the President to know "you are among friends."

Nixon chose not to mention Watergate in his campaign-style speech, focusing instead on the rally's "what's right with America" theme.

"If you had to pick a country in which to be born, a country where you had the greatest freedom and the greatest opportunity to go as high as your talents will take you...believe me, you would all pick the United States of America," Nixon said, getting loud applause.

In conclusion, after describing the United States as the world's wealthiest nation and its most powerful military, he said: "We are strong and we are rich, but there is so much more work left to be done here at home...and abroad there is so much...that only America can do to leave a legacy for generations to come of a peaceful world."

'Getting attention' is lecture subject

LA PUENTE — "Getting Attention Wisely and Unwisely" is the subject of the third lecture in the "Interacting with Life" series, sponsored by La Puente Community Adult School.

Scheduled for Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Hudson Adult Center, 15839 E. Rowland Ave., the evening will again feature guest lecturer Dr. Arthur L. Beitz.

Beitz, one of the most widely known psychologists on the lecture and forum platforms in Southern California, will discuss how a great deal of so-called "sick behavior" simply seeks attention unwisely.

For further information on the lecture, persons may call 213 968 8452.

Waiting in gas line costs driver her car

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPI) — Mrs. Olga Foriska, Pleasanton, lost her car Monday because she was too patient in a line waiting for gasoline at a service station.

Police said Mrs. Foriska's car was on train tracks and, when the warning signals began blinking, other motorists began honking at her.

She waited patiently, police said, but, when she realized a train was rolling down the tracks, she grabbed her dog from the car and ran from it.

A 62-car Western Pacific freight train rounded a curve and smashed into her car. It bounced off two other autos, but no one was hurt.

Confusion over report Dayan ready to resign

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli national radio said Tuesday Moshe Dayan is resigning as Defense Minister, but one of his Labor party associates said only he will not serve in the next cabinet "under the present conditions."

A spokesman for Dayan said "I absolutely refuse to comment" on a national radio report which said Dayan announced his flat refusal to be a minister in the government under formation by Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Deputy Transport Minister Gad Ya'acobi, a close supporter of Dayan in internal Labor party disputes, said the defense minister told him "he will not be a minister in the government under the present conditions." He refused to explain what conditions Dayan mentioned.

The broadcast said he told Labor party colleagues he would not serve in Israel's new cabinet, a statement which means he must resign his post since the new cabinet is to be formed by Wednesday.

2 Ontario sisters kidnaped; 1 raped

ONTARIO — Two Ontario sisters were the victims of a kidnaping and robbery Monday night. One of the sisters managed to escape her abductor, but the other was raped, according to Ontario police.

Police said they were called by a 19-year-old woman who told them that she and her 18-year-old sister were walking home when a man in a car stopped to talk to them in front of the Owl Club, 730 W. Holt Blvd. The sisters said they wanted to go to the Club 66 and the man offered them a ride in his 1967 tan and blue Ford. He was described as a Caucasian, 20, 175-180 pounds, with light brown or blond shoulder length hair wearing a green beanie cap.

Police said the women got into his car and he drove to the Ontario Boulevard area and stopped. The man told the women that he wanted to get a pack of matches from under the seat, but came up with a jagged broken bottle knife.

He threatened the women and ordered them to take off their jewelry and put any cash they had in the car's ashtray. The women gave their gold wedding rings telling the man that they had no money, police said. The man then forced both women out of the car and tied up the older sister.

As the man was tying up the younger sister the older sister freed herself and ran away.

CHINO — A La Puente man was arrested on suspicion of drunk driving Monday night when his pickup-camper turned over on the Pomona Freeway east of Mountain Avenue, injuring his two small sons.

Manuel A. Villegas, 42, of 305 Long Ave., was arrested by the highway patrol and booked at the West End sheriff's station.

Witnesses told officers that the camper was weaving from one shoulder to the other prior to the accident. It struck a metal barrier on the right of the highway, crossed three lanes and went into the center divider where it overturned.

Manuel V. Villegas, 10, and Frank V. Villegas, 5, were treated for minor injuries at Chino General Hospital and released.

Pedestrian, 88, hurt

ONTARIO — An 88-year-old Ontario man struck by a car while crossing the street at Euclid Avenue and Park Street Monday morning was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Loma Linda University Medical Center.

Pedro Rivera of 204 E. Nevada, according to police, was in the crosswalk when he was struck by a car driven by Yvonne Dennis, 60, of 916 Amber Court, Upland.

Rivera suffered multiple arm and leg fractures. Police said the car was traveling southbound on Euclid Avenue when the mishap occurred.

Rivera was transported to Montclair Doctors Hospital by ambulance and later transferred to the Loma Linda hospital.

Ex-college leader jailed

POMONA — Former Chaffey College student leader Douglas Farmer has been sentenced to state prison for the possession of marijuana for sale and possession of amphetamines.

Farmer, 33, formerly of 1360 E. Pasadena St., was president of the Black Student Union at Chaffey. He still faces trial on federal bank robbery charges as the result of the holdup last summer of a local Bank of America branch.

The drug charges resulted after officers found the contraband in Farmer's home when they went there to arrest him on the bank robbery charge. He was convicted in a jury trial in the court of Judge Gerald Malkan last month. It was Malkan who sentenced him to prison where he faces from 2 to 10 years' confinement.

The child was rushed to Queen of the Valley Hospital by Sheriff's Deputies Michael Connor and Gregory Moen, who restored her breathing en route. The victim, who suffered convulsions and ran a high fever, later was said to be in satisfactory condition.

Pomona cyclist injured in crash

POMONA — An 8-year-old boy suffered a minor leg injury Monday evening when his bike and a car collided at Indian Hill Boulevard north of Kingsley Avenue. Lee M. Miller, 1679 E. Boy goes long way chasing cat

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Mark Emchick, 11, Cleveland, Ohio, took an unexpected trip Sunday after he boarded a Penn Central freight train near his home to retrieve his pet cat.

The youth, son of Harold and Shirley Emchick, followed his pet cat onto a flatbed railroad car standing in a train yard near his home.

The train started up before he was able to get off, however and some two hours later, he found himself at Union Terminal in Erie.

Trainmaster Ralph Williams discovered young Emchick and telephoned police who took the lad to headquarters and notified his parents.

The cat jumped off the train before the freight left Cleveland.

Disposable income up

The real disposable income per person during the first half of 1973 ran about 11 percent higher than in the corresponding period in 1972, University of Nebraska researchers say.

Moose hunting big

Moose hunting is a popular sport in Minnesota, where hundreds of the big animals were taken during 1973. Racks of antlers between 34 and 39 inches are common.

Runaway girl claims rape by 'samaritan'

ONTARIO — A 15-year-old Ontario girl who had run away from home was allegedly raped by a 17-year-old youth who had offered her help and shelter, according to police reports.

Police said the girl had been reported missing from her Ontario home on Feb. 10. The girl apparently was hitchhiking near the San Bernardino Freeway and was offered a ride by three youths in a car. One of the youths in car offered the girl shelter and food at his home.

The girl reportedly stayed inside the youth's home the next day.

On Feb. 12 the girl said the youth offered to let her sleep in a shed at the rear of his home. In the shed the girl said the youth wanted payment for helping her and pulled a knife. The girl said the youth made her take off her clothes and forcibly raped her.

The girl did not tell her parents of the incident until Friday.

Police said the youth was arrested on suspicion of rape and has been petitioned to juvenile court.

Two local school programs 'models of excellence'

BY PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Innovative, futuristic instructional programs at two elementary schools here have been nominated as models of excellence by a state committee.

If the programs—a unit system at Washington and a flip-flop system at Lexington—are selected by the State Department of Education, they will be published and distributed statewide as models other schools may follow.

The state validation team spent an entire day at each school, questioning teachers, administrators, students and parents.

When the nominations came in, Washington and Lexington were described as "schools with promising practices."

Patricia A. Ramp, coordinator of Compensatory Education in Pomona schools, was asked by the State Department of Education to recommend schools in her district which had programs individualized to meet a child's need, were showing real growth in reading and math, were high on parent involvement and "had something extra that was turning the kids on."

She recommended Washington and Lexington because their programs are so personalized and their pupils are self-motivated and self-determined.

Also, in reading and math growth, these pupils are 15 per cent ahead of average, she said.

At Washington school—where some of the 500 pupils are in classrooms built in 1913 which will be torn down this summer—Principal James E. Taylor is elated.

"These nominations are a real feather in the district's cap," said Taylor.

Both his unit system and Lexington's flip-flop system were written by the respective faculties. Both gauge instruction to the needs of each individual child enrolled. Both allow a child to advance as fast as he or she can. Both tend to blur grade level and the importance of age so significant in the past.

Both schools are in their second years with their instructional programs.

Washington's system utilizes team teaching and a plan called Individually Guided Education (IGE). Each child is tested, placed at his level of learning and helped by a team to advance at his rate of ability.

The teams consist of a leader, several teachers, several instructional aides and volunteer parents. Their numbers vary. Team leaders are Linda Harrison, Vivian Eymann, Bob Murray and Ron Goble.

"Individualizing instruction is the key," explained Taylor. "For the children, it is an honor system. There is constant movement within the groups. Lots of charting goes along with it."

"We feel the unit system offers a real alternative for improvement in education. We've been talking this for years. It is absurd to think 30 kids can open to page 1 in a math book and all be ready to do the work."

"The big plus is that the kids are really having a ball. They have options in learning. They move around, legally. They, not a teacher, are determining how fast they learn."

Ron Goble, leader of Unit D (5th-6th grade), believes the new system is a tremendous improvement because "the whole team helps each child."

Two teachers in his unit agree. Mrs. Charlene Shireman said, "Each child works at his own level. It is better for the child." Mrs. Janet Tinkham added, "They're working with materials they understand, and they are able to progress better because they understand better."

Principal Harlan W. Donahue at Lexington said his staff is using the Fresno PRIME Reading and Math System as a foundation.

"A diagnostic-prescriptive approach is used to establish the child's instructional level and his ongoing assignments within a continuing of math and reading skills."

"The children participate in 90 minutes of language arts (reading) followed by 90 minutes of mathematics." Hence, the term flip-flop.

The block time is utilized 30 minutes on sequential development of skills, 30 minutes with a teacher in basic books on common needs and 30 minutes in learning centers which offer alternative approaches to learning, such as g a m e s , filmstrips, records, tapes, charts, artwork, manipulative devices.

The teacher and a paid aide work as a team, assisted by parent volunteers, high school aides, college-age assistants and cross-age tutors.

For some classes, two teachers and two aides share responsibilities for 60 children.

Teachers had extensive in-service training last summer and receive more now on a weekly basis.

In addition to its classroom program, Lexington has monthly assemblies and an on-going awards program designed to improve self-image and encourage pupils to work for good manners, attitude and citizenship.

"In sum," said Donahue, "the school has become a rewarding experience in which children have the opportunity to achieve success in a wholesome learning environment that offers alternative approaches."

Under Donahue's supervision, Lexington's program is guided by reading specialists Tina Karlmark and Fern Neumann and math specialist Lisabeth Rompert. A plan to establish team leaders among teachers is in the formative stages for next year.

"Our teachers are encouraged to be innovative. Our children are taking tremendous pride in themselves and in the school," said Miss Karlmark.

"School here is no longer the dull routine of rote learning. It is a happy, changing, challenging adventure that the children look forward to each day."

Montclair councilman in 35th Congress race

MONTCLAIR — Montclair City Councilman Tom McClure has announced that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the new 35th Congressional District and says he'll wage an unorthodox campaign.

McClure, 44, is the Pasadena office manager for an independent insurance adjustment firm. He has lived in Montclair for 20 years and has served as a city councilman since 1968.

In announcing his candidacy McClure admitted that his campaign for the nomination will be, by design, unorthodox. At the moment his campaign has no money, he does not plan to have a campaign manager, nor will he have a campaign headquarters.

"The candidates that have announced so far are the typical politician type," said McClure. "People have had it with the meaningless phrases of candidates packaged by public relations firms or representing vested interests."

His entire campaign, he said, would be based on the voluntary effort of individual supporters.

"We have an opportunity to show that intelligent people, given the choice, will elect a candidate who possesses integrity, sensitivity to people's problems, aggressiveness, and the fortitude to stand up in the face of pressure groups," McClure said.

The top issues in the race, said McClure, will be personal integrity, inflation, the energy crisis, taxes and the candidate's ability to build and maintain communications with the voters and the individual cities in the district.

"One of the foremost roles of a congressman is continuing contact with his own district. When was the last time a congressman sat down and discussed your city's problems with the leadership in your community?

"To me, the only manner in which a congressman can adequately understand and assess the problems of the people is to go to the people and listen."

McClure, who has served on a variety of Montclair and League of California Cities' committees and commissions, describes himself as a liberal on most social issues but conservative on fiscal matters.

McClure and his wife, Vel, have three children.

"It's not win at all costs for me. I'm going to tell people where I stand and maybe if enough of them agree with me, we can make some changes," he said.

Elections were held Saturday in Los Angeles. Charles W. Ayellette, publisher of the Compton Herald-American, was elected president succeeding Fred Weybret, publisher of the Lodi-News Sentinel.

Metcalf was general manager of the Ontario Daily Report before being elevated to his present position in the western division. He supervises 11 newspapers in California, Nevada, Washington and Hawaii, including the Progress-Bulletin which was purchased by Donrey Media in 1968.

Cal Poly Post wins top spot

POMONA — Cal Poly's twice-weekly campus newspaper, The Poly Post, has received a first-place general excellence award from the California Newspaper Publishers Association (CNPA).

The award, one of several in the CNPA's annual Better Newspapers Contest, is for four-year college or university papers of over 6,000 circulation.

A second-place award went to USC's Daily Trojan.

The judges said they based their decision in choosing the Post for first place on the paper's "good use of photographs" and its "well departmentalized format."

The award was given for issues printed last spring, according to Frank Tennant, adviser of the paper last year. The paper was edited by Mike Butowitsch, who was graduated last year.

Tennant said Butowitsch completely revamped the paper's format when he became editor, concentrating on a modern tabloid type publication in place of the traditional one which had won Cal Poly a second place four years ago.

Registration may be made at the center. The cost will be 75 cents each for persons 18 and older and 10 cents each for persons 14 through 17 years.

Tom James will be in charge. Further information may be obtained by calling 620-2307.

POMONA — The California Association of Rehabilitation Facilities has honored Congressman Jerry L. Pettis, R-33rd Dist., for his contributions to rehabilitation and his efforts to help the disabled and handicapped.

Barrie L. Dyer, director of program development at Casa Colina Hospital, nominated Pettis to receive the association's Public Affairs Award. Accepting the award for Pettis at the annual conference of the Cal-ARF Association was Miss Sally Grove of Casa Colina Hospital.

Miss Grove, a member of the board of directors at Casa Colina, is active in numerous organizations working on behalf of the disabled and is a personal friend of Pettis. She is a quadriplegic and was rehabilitated at Casa Colina.

Pettis has given active support to rehabilitation facilities in his district to help solve the problems of the disabled population. Through his legislative efforts, $30,000,000 in rehabilitation funds withheld from the 1973 federal budget was reinstated and allocated. California received $2,400,000 of these funds.

Dealing with a Catch-22 economy

The world today is suffering from a disease worse than that caused by any germ or virus.

The disease is inflation and while some countries are afflicted less than others, no country is free of it, not excepting those with state-run economies. Nor do any two experts agree on what causes it, or what can or should be done to combat it.

In the United States, inflation, until recently, was reasonably well contained. It was lower than that being experienced in most other industrial nations and nothing compared to what was rampaging in certain Latin American countries.

Though the symptoms always bore watching, inflation was not even considered a disease. Rather, in its mild form it had a euphoric effect, almost like a drug. It was a tonic. It gave the economy a perpetual "high."

Prices kept going up, but income went faster. One could borrow money confident today that he would pay it off in cheaper dollars tomorrow. It was a speculator's dream. There were occasional reverses and some casualties but the general trend was a steady up, up, up.

Those on fixed incomes saw the erosion of their standards of living but for them there were various medicines—an additional shot of Social Security or something like that. After all, the country could afford it.

Then came something called "stagflation"—a stagnant or stationary economy, but with continuing inflation. Not exactly healthy but still not serious.

Now, however, the disease seems to be approaching the virulent stage and in this stage, inflation is not a tonic but a blight, a disabler, a disrupter of the plans and hopes of societies as well as of individuals.

In a pessimistic forecast the other day, the President's Council of Economic Advisors estimated that prices will advance at a rate of 7 per cent over the coming year, surpassing the rate of 1973 which was bad enough to make 1974 the worst inflationary year since World War II.

The council also estimated that the Gross National Product will expand by some 8 per cent to nearly $1.4 trillion. Only about 1 per cent of that will represent real growth, however; the rest will be due to inflation.

Even 7 per cent would not be a disastrous rate but somehow we have contrived to poise ourselves on the verge of a recession as well.

A recession—or better yet, an outright depression—is the best-known cure to inflation. Unfortunately, it is a cure worse than the disease itself. At least we no longer tolerate it as a cure.

If we knew what caused inflation then we could do something about it. Oh, we think we know some of the things that aggravate the condition, like much deficit spending by government. But the opposite of this—higher taxes to draw the excess from the money supply to cool a feverish economy—doesn't always work. Or it can cool the economy too much, and then we begin wishing we had some more inflation.

For the ordinary person, anyway, it makes little difference whether his paycheck is being eaten up by higher prices or by higher taxes.

Even this dubious remedy is not advisable today because of the threat of recession. The administration is determined to head off a recession at all costs and is prepared to spend whatever it takes to do it. Thus in 1974 we may find ourselves with the worst of both possible worlds.

What is needed is an economic Dr. Jenner with some kind of inoculation that will immunize the world's economies against the virus of inflation but won't kill the patient at the same time.

Just like the big guys

The entire population—about 100,000—of the Caribbean island of Grenada could be swallowed up in New York City subway traffic on a slow day.

Indeed, the island is not much bigger than Manhattan, but it has a lot of things many far larger nations cannot boast of.

Grenada has a homegrown authoritarian government, complete with secret police, an opposition leftist party, a "black power" movement and all kinds of domestic unrest currently exacerbated by a food and power shortage caused by a strike of dock and electrical workers.

On the eve of the island's recent attainment of independence from Great Britain which many Grenadians did not want, violence between the ruling party and its opposition forced cancellation of plans for a representative of Queen Elizabeth to be present at independence ceremonies. The U.S. State Department has also advised Americans to stay away from the island for the time being.

There may be other places in the world that have more trouble per capita than Grenada, but until the evidence is forthcoming, this sun-bathed volatile little flyspeck in the Caribbean would seem to hold the record.

Officials seek space phantom

WASHINGTON — As the Skylab III crew descended into the Pacific a few days ago, some Americans waited breathlessly in fear the astronauts would never emerge alive.

Their fears were not just normal concern about the heroes. Quite the contrary, they had actually heard mysterious voices telling of an explosion over Moscow, an oxygen loss and a conversation with President Nixon.

The voices were real enough, only the messages were false. These disturbing and potentially disastrous reports during the final days of the Skylab III mission were "broadcast" in various parts of the country by a "Space Phantom" now being sought by federal investigators.

Although we learned of the fake broadcasts days before Skylab splashed down, we withheld the story after consulting with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. We feared it could create panic or stimulate equally sick people with electronic talent.

But now that Skylab III is safely down, here are the facts:

In Rocky Mount, N.C., officials of Unifi, Inc., a textile firm, were on a long distance call to New York on Friday, Jan. 25, when they began getting interference. At first, said Larry Ayse, a custom service coordinator for the company, "it sounded like radio transmissions from an airliner."

He soon realized however, that he was overhearing what sounded like transmissions between Skylab III and the Houston space center. He could hear only the "Skylab end" of the conversation and he could even hear "the click when they let go of the mike key."

Other people picked up extensions and Ayse took notes. At 11:50 A.M., he heard the astronauts say they had been "taking military photos of silos over Moscow" when they "received an approximately 10 megaton explosion." The spacecraft, the voices said, was completely disabled and had only 11 hours of oxygen left.

The "Skylab crew" then stated they were sending "scrambled" transmissions on channel 5 and channel 3.

Whereupon, said Ayse, he heard something resembling Morse Code coming over his phone line.

That done, "astronauts" began speaking with the White House. "Yes, Mr. President," came the cool, monotone voice. "Yes, Mr. President. We understand this." The "Skylab crew" acknowledged that they understood their wives had been notified and were being flown to Houston.

At 12:15 P.M., the voices reported that their "secret documents and equipment" had been jettisoned. The transmissions then abruptly ended.

Similar reports of mysterious space messages were quietly investigated by our associate Joe Spear. He found about a dozen other rational people had heard the voices. All reported essentially the same details.

At NASA, officials advised us that still others around the country had reported similar phone interference. A Connecticut doctor told of hearing a conversation from space alleging that Skylab had been struck by a meteorite. A Jacksonville, Fla., man had heard the space voices and claimed he recorded them on tape.

Now, NASA's security specialists are trying to find which "fone freak" perpetrated the elaborate hoaxes. So far, we have learned, only the "Space Phantom" knows.

WEICKER VS. BUCHANAN: When the Sigma Delta Chi journalistic fraternity wanted a hot debate, they seized on the idea of pitting Watergate Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., against blustery White House speech writer and media critic Pat Buchanan. Weicker readily agreed to meet Buchanan before the Washington chapter, but Buchanan refused to appear.

BEBE'S NAME: When three naive New Jersey contractors came to ex-Sen. George Smathers' firm with a contract problem, they say they got a promise of help from the President's friend, Bebe Rebozo.

Lew Malnak, of Lew Malnak and Associates, and two of his top executives, say the promise came from a young Smathers' partner, Thomas A. Davis, who the three contractors had seen about a $750,000 contract dispute.

As they recall it, Davis told them the dispute could easily be dealt with through "Bebe." Davis, after jogging his memory with notes, says he recalls seeing the trio, but he emphatically denies ever invoking Rebozo's name.

Though Bebe is a close friend of Smathers, we can find no evidence that either of them were ever helpful to Malnak. Both Davis and Malnak men agree that Smathers' firm did not handle the case.

Now, two years later, Malnak is still looking for justice on the Navy contract, this time with the help of Reps. Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., and Les Aspin, D-Wis.

As they recall it, Davis told them the

INSIDE REPORT

Barry explodes 'myth' of Jackson

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A blistering attack on Sen. Henry M. Jackson by his old friend Sen. Barry M. Goldwater stunned a blue-ribbon audience of top U.S. industrialists here last week who had invited the 1964 Republican presidential nominee to give them a closed-door political talk.

The Goldwater assault was not personal, but in strictly political terms it sought to lay bare what Goldwater called "the myth" of Jackson as a conservative Democrat close to big business.

Not at all, said the usually mild-mannered Goldwater: "Scoop" Jackson was parading in conservative-Democratic sheepskin, concealing the wolf of economic populism.

Playing on his virtual ostracism by the left wing of the Democratic party, Jackson has concealed the economic liberalism that makes other liberal Democrats anathema to U.S. business, Goldwater said.

But in fact, Goldwater went on, Jackson represents a profound threat to American business. He cited Jackson's sponsorship of the bill to place government and public members on boards of directors of major U.S. oil companies. That, he implied, could be the beginning of the end of the free enterprise system.

The next target, Goldwater said, will be steel. As prime architect of federalizing major American industries, Goldwater claimed, Jackson must be perceived as a skillful and dangerous antagonist. Moreover, with full political backing of the powerful American-Jewish community, said Goldwater, and his "100 per cent" pro-labor voting record, Jackson looms today as the most potent presidential threat against the Republicans.

A Rhodes misstep?

Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, the new House Republican leader, may have caught his toe in a crack by blocking an ambitious freshman conservative, Rep. Robert Bauman of Maryland, from the Republican vacancy on the impeachment-potential House Judiciary Committee.

Bauman not only strongly bid for the job but had support from the powerful California delegation in the Republican Committee on Committees, as well as many Republican freshmen.

A hard-line conservative, Bauman lost when Rhodes, supported by the Republican leadership, recruited Rep. Delbert L. Latta of Ohio, an experienced 16-year veteran of the House and persuaded him to take the hot seat despite Latta's membership on the coveted House Rules Committee.

The decision not to give the seat to Bauman brought Rhodes face to face with his first intraparty battle since taking over from Vice President Gerald Ford. Thus, Bauman had some support in the executive committee, which recommends assignments to the much larger Committee on Committees. There he polled some 40-plus votes, a good minority showing. Both groups, chaired by Rhodes, usually operate unanimously.

Rhodes, whose leadership popularity stems partly from his overt independence of White House pressure, has now disenchanted many freshman Republicans. To them the issue was not Bauman's conservative ideology but their right to get a fair share of party power at a time of ballyhooed congressional reform.

Simon vs. Ash

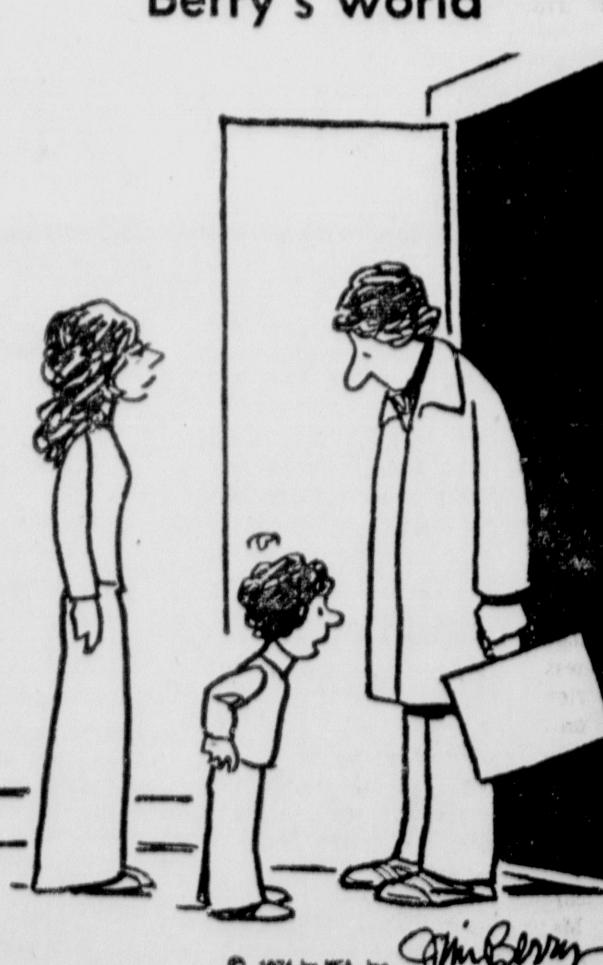

Energy czar William Simon instructed an aide to make certain that Irving R. Levine, NBC's interviewer when Simon appeared on the "Today" show last Wednesday, was fully aware of Simon's anger at Roy Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, for forecasting a quick end of the energy crisis.

Simon's intent: make certain that Levine (a seasoned reporter who needed no such hints) would bring up Ash's prediction the next morning and ask Simon's reaction. Simon's reply (a verbatim replay of the reply Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz gave to former White House aide Melvin R. Laird last fall when Laird called for a temporary tax hike) was: "Keep your cotton-pickin' hands off" the energy crisis.

In truth, Ash's forecast that the gasoline famine would end "in a few months" infuriated not only Simon but every energy expert in town. Unless the Arab oil boycott ended now and Saudi Arabia immediately tripled its present 6 million barrels a day production rate—a political and engineering impossibility—the shortage will last years, not months.

Why did Ash gush? Because, as an unblinking follower of the Chicago school of economics, he apparently is convinced that if prices keep rising, as they are now, the free enterprise system will find a way to lift the supply. But politicians also say Ash's rosy forecast was designed to make President Nixon look good—a game that will backlash on the President when maddening gas station lines continue into the spring.

Suzanne projects on commission agenda

WALNUT — Suzanne Park projects constitute the entire published agenda for tonight's meeting of the city Parks and Recreation Commission.

However, the meeting may not be held, according to commission Chairman Al Bobrow. He said the date had been moved from its regular Monday slot without the panel's knowledge, and that a poll of commissioners would be made today to determine whether a quorum would be available.

Should the meeting go on as scheduled, it will begin at 7:30 p.m. in city hall. Following a discussion of landscape plans for the park, the commission will consider a request from boys baseball "for use of a grassy field in the north end of the park as a site for baseball games. The field is south of a horse show ring."

The horse show ring itself becomes the next topic when the Walnut Valley Riders ask for an automatic sprinkling system in the ring.

Early Childhood Education program will receive pats and pans tonight

WALNUT — Kudos for Vejar School's Early Childhood Education program will be presented tonight at the Walnut school board meeting.

In the 7:30 p.m. session in the multi-purpose room at Walnut High School, the board will also receive four proposals from the Certificated Employees Council just after taking action on policies proposed last November by the group.

Trustees are scheduled to begin the business portion of their meeting with a review and discussion of a state evaluation of the Vejar School ECE program. Administrators, teachers, and parents worked as a cooperative unit in creating the district's pilot program, established under a statewide initiative to restructure elementary education.

According to a report from Mrs. Sharon MacKenzie, administrator supervising the program, the ECE curriculum received high marks. Its strengths were noted in areas of parent involvement, diagnostic and assessment methods used in classrooms, and individualized approaches to learning.

On the minus side, the program was criticized for its performance objectives, evaluation methods, and parent education procedures.

Since the program is designed to expand annually to a higher grade level—Vejar is implementing ECE in kindergarten and the first grade this year—it is anticipated the board will receive the evaluation report thoroughly.

Last November the Certificated Employees Council (CEC) broke with district tradition to begin discussions on proposals outside of standard salary negotiations. At that time the group explained it sought to have a dialogue with the board in making proposals which did not necessarily relate to annual wage and benefit cycles.

Tonight the board will pick up for second reading some policy changes proposed in the November discussion.

Swiss grant stay to exiled Soviet writer

ZURICH (UPI) — The government has given exiled Soviet writer Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn permission to stay in Switzerland "as long as he wishes."

Swiss authorities said the Nobel Prize-winning author would be allowed to write what he wants, but would have to refrain from making public statements damaging the tiny nation's traditional neutrality.

"Solzhenitsyn has been given a permanent visa and can stay in Switzerland as long as he wishes," Justice Minister Kurt Furgler said Sunday in a radio interview.

The decision to let the 55-year-old writer stay permanently was an exception to Switzerland's normal immigration procedures, which usually limit new arrivals to three month visas.

Government officials in Berne said Solzhenitsyn could write what he wishes, but like every other foreigner must respect laws against making public statements damaging Switzerland's relations with other nations.

The author has so far respected the ban on political speeches. Since arriving, he has answered all reporters' questions with comments as "no questions, no answers" or "no, no, no."

He lost his temper Sunday when two French photographers followed him on a stroll. "You are worse than the Russian secret police," he told them.

Solzhenitsyn toured the Swiss countryside Wednesday, accompanied by his lawyer and host, Fritz Heeb, and Zurich Mayor Sigmund Widmer. Heeb's wife said the writer wanted to find a home in Switzerland where his family could join him.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin said Saturday Solzhenitsyn's wife and three sons, still in Moscow, could join the author whenever they wish.

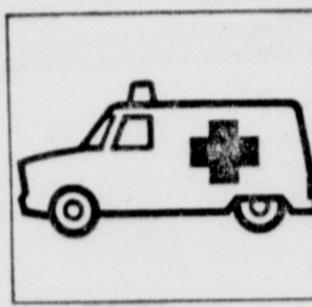

The writer's West German publisher, Rudolph Streitberger, said, "His plans are up in the air, and he will make no statement before his family has joined him."

The reason behind his indecision was reflected in Solzhenitsyn's comment to one newsman: "Remember, four days ago I was taken by police and put on a plane in Moscow and had no idea where I was going until I saw the sign at Frankfurt airport."

THE PRIORITIES

First, farmers get all the fuel they need. Then, assuming enough fuels are available:

These get all the gasoline they need. Emergency services, telecommunications, public passenger transportation, energy production, sanitation services, and the military.

Truckers and factories. Current plans call for truckers to get all they need, and for factories to get 10 percent more fuel than in 1972. This is to keep the economy going and to protect jobs. Mail is important too. So, mail haulers are to get 10 percent more than in 1972.

Shell Oil Company, One Shell Plaza,
P.O. Box 2463, Room 1541,
Houston, Texas 77001

About those long lines at service stations. Shell believes that in the near future a national program of gasoline rationing may be needed to enable individual motorists to get their fair share of the available gasoline—without having to wait in long lines. Developments over the next few weeks, including whether or not the Arab oil embargo is lifted, should make clear if this drastic move will be necessary.

During the shortage it might be helpful if you understand the details of the U.S. Government's allocation program—how it's designed to protect jobs and essential services, and why the motorist comes last.

Although there are many problems to iron out, in times like these Shell thinks the government's allocation program makes sense. Its intent is to establish national priorities for distributing these products.

Farmers must be given special consideration. They put the food on our tables.

Ambulances, fire departments and other emergency services obviously are very important. Fuel for them is often a matter of life or death.

And industry must be given a fair share in order to protect jobs and keep the economy going.

Service stations and motorists end up with what's left. But if everybody conserves a little, we should all be able to get by without drastically changing the way we live.

Here are two important aspects of the allocation program that affect the amount of gasoline Shell can produce.

1. Crude oil is allocated, too

During 1973 Shell was able to run its refineries at near capacity.

In an effort to keep all refiners operating, the government is now allocating crude oil. Here is its plan for crude oil allocation during February, March and April.

On February 1st, all refiners (including Shell) were allocated enough crude oil to run at about 76 percent of crude capacity. Those who had crude oil above that amount, which indeed Shell did, are required to sell it to other refiners—those who do not have enough crude oil to run at about 76 percent of capacity.

Refiners able to acquire additional crude oil after February 1st can process it in their own refineries.

2. Refiners may have to make less gasoline

The government may also regulate how refineries use the crude oil they get.

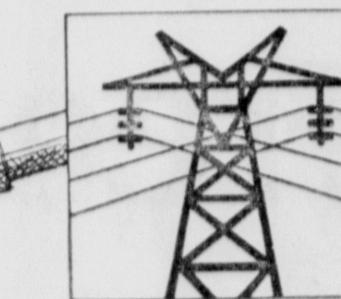

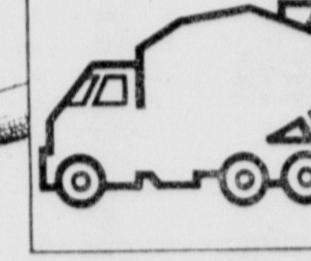

Within refinery limitations, you can make different amounts of gasoline out of the same barrel of crude oil. If you make less gasoline, you can end up with more of such things as heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel.

Refineries may be required to make the same percentage of their crude oil into gasoline as they did in 1972, which means making less gasoline than they might otherwise be making now. If the government imposes such a rule it will be in order to satisfy the priorities it has set up.

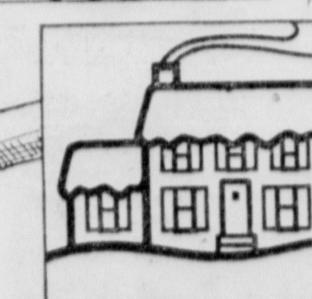

But from the point of view of the motorist, it adds up to this: We start out with less crude oil and may end up with less of it being turned into gasoline.

The new allocation program makes it more difficult for us to supply those motorists who have been loyal to Shell products and dealers in the past.

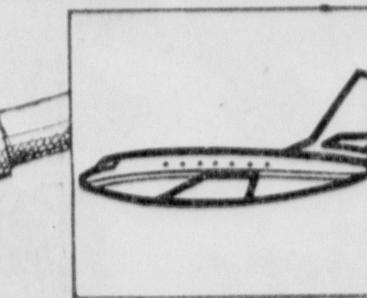

All other businesses buying in bulk. These get as much gasoline as they used in 1972. An exception is the service station dealer whose status is described below.

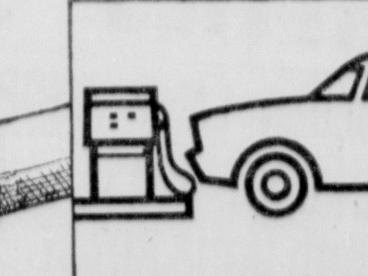

Utilities, drug manufacturers, cargo ships. Plans call for utilities to get 95 percent of their fuel oil needs. Manufacturers of essential medicines get as much fuel oil as they need. Cargo ships using residual fuels get as much as they need.

Heating oil. Probably enough for everybody if everybody turns down the heat. Homes and schools must turn it down six degrees. Other buildings, ten degrees. Or else risk running out of oil. (Of course adequate insulation, storm windows, etc., help conserve fuel.)

National and international airlines are supposed to get 95 percent of their 1972 consumption. Regional airlines and air taxis are to get 100 percent of 1972 consumption, business aircraft are held to 90 percent.

Gasoline stations get what's left. According to government estimates, gasoline stations will be about 20 percent short of supplying normal consumer demand. Shell stations are no exception. Now you know why some Shell stations are sometimes forced to hang up a sign reading "Sorry, No Gas".

Note: These allocation rules are correct as we interpret them as of February 8, 1974.

Pac-8 finally gets basketball race

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — For the first time in years, there is actually a basketball race in the Pacific-8 Conference.

It's not automatic this season about UCLA rolling through the Pac-8 on its way to another national title. The Bruins may still win an eighth consecutive conference and national crown but there is now some doubt.

UCLA and cross-town rival USC share the Pac-8 lead with 7-2 records after that unbelievable weekend in Oregon. While the 'unbeatable' Bruins dropped two to Oregon State and Oregon, the Trojans were most impressive in sweeping a pair over the same foes.

"We did play the best basketball in the State of Oregon during the weekend, not Oregon and Oregon State," USC coach Bob Boyd reminded the Southern California basketball writers at Monday's weekly luncheon.

It's kind of obvious Boyd is irritated his Trojans don't receive nearly as much recognition or publicity as UCLA.

"Our record proves it," Boyd continued. "I would say it was the best basketball we have played in my years at USC but not many people know about it."

Of course, most of the writers were anxious to hear UCLA coach John Wooden, who certainly isn't used to losing two games in a row.

"I'm not pleased," Wooden said in an obvious reference to his normal "I'm pleased" about a typical Bruin run-away victory.

But basketball coaches and fans around the nation better not bury the Bruins yet.

"We're not ready to throw in the towel," Wooden said. "We don't want to panic and I don't feel there is any need for any radical changes. But we do need to do something to make our players more hungry. We are not sustaining intensity."

Of course, UCLA must win the Pac-8 crown to have a chance to take another national championship. Both the Trojans and Bruins have five conference games remaining — two at home this weekend against Washington and Washington State and two on the road in the Bay Area against Stanford and California — with a possible showdown slated on March 9 at the Sports Arena.

"One thing is for sure, both of us can't win our final five since we play each other," Wooden said. "I hope Bob (Boyd) remembers USC doesn't beat us in the Sports Arena. They may beat us at Pauley Pavilion but not at the Sports Arena."

"We have to win our next four games to have big things happening in that Sports Arena game," Boyd added.

USC will be hurting with the loss of reserve guard Biff Burrell with an apparent cracked bone in his right foot. It is doubtful if he can return this season.

"If his loss is permanent, this is a staggering blow," Boyd said. "In many areas, there is little difference between him and our starters. His defensive play, for example, is outstanding."

Trojan guard Dan Anderson, who scored 25 points in Saturday night's win at Oregon State, was selected the University Player of the Week. He suffered a strained ligament in his right ankle but should be all right for the weekend.

USC hosts Washington Friday and Washington Saturday with the second game being something special for the Trojans because of their upset loss to Washington State at the beginning of the conference season.

"Washington State does linger in our mind," Boyd admitted. "Most people got off us after our loss in our first conference game."

There may be some personnel changes involving UCLA but Wooden won't spell them out except for admitting freshman guard Jim Spillane of Palos Verdes may be moved up to the varsity.

"Yes, I do anticipate some lineup changes but I don't want to go any further at this time," Wooden said.

It's also obvious Wooden is going to be tougher on his team.

"The whip will be cracked a little harder this week," Wooden said. "As I get older, I may be letting compassion or emotion take over from reason. It's time to cut that out. Maybe I'm too peaceful now."

Wooden added it's tough for his players to accept the new sting of losing.

"The team morale is not good," the Wizard of Westwood continued. "The players are frustrated. Losing two games in a row is a new thing for them."

Senior forward Dennis Vanzant was selected the College Player of the Week for leading Azusa to three wins by scoring 67 points, grabbing 32 rebounds and being credited with 11 assists.

"This is definitely the best team I've played for at Azusa," Vanzant said. "Our team unity has been the big thing. We're together on and off the court."

to earn the best record in the history of the university."

Olson admits it has been a tough year with the pressures of the probation.

"It hasn't been easy with the constant pressure," he said, "and it has been the hardest for me to go through. If we end up at 24-2, it will be a good year under the circumstances."

Azusa Pacific is sailing along with a 24-3 season mark entering tonight's home game against Biola as coach Cliff Hamlow is hoping his Cougars can represent California in the NAIA finals in Kansas City next month.

No. Carolina St. takes No. 1 spot

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there was an energy shortage in Oregon last weekend, it was UCLA that suffered from it.

After being upset by Oregon State and Oregon, the Bruins were spilt from the No. 1 perch in the United Press International Board of Coaches' major college basketball ratings by North Carolina State, the third team to hold the top spot this season.

Another former No. 1, Notre Dame, also climbed past the sliding Bruins into the second position in the ratings.

N.C. State's Wolfpack was soundly trounced by UCLA in St. Louis Dec. 15, but since then has scored a pair of impressive victories over both North Carolina and Maryland, ranked fourth and sixth, respectively, this week.

The Wolfpack were a solid choice for the No. 1 ranking as their 20-1 record attracted 21 of the 35 first place ballots cast.

Notre Dame, with an identical 20-1 mark, received 10 first place votes, while UCLA picked up the remaining four.

North Carolina State's point total was 334 to the Irish's 318.

Notre Dame also has been the victim of a 19-point defeat at the hands of the Bruins, but it was the Irish who ended

UCLA's record 88-game winning streak at South Bend earlier this season.

The North Carolina Tar Heels survived a loss at Maryland last week to hang onto their No. 4 rating, while Vanderbilt remained fifth with a 20-1 mark.

Maryland was sixth, followed by Marquette and Pittsburgh.

Southern California advanced to ninth in the rankings with a pair of victories last weekend, but, more important, tied UCLA for the Pacific-8 lead.

Broncos trade for Chaffey grad

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Broncos sent two future draft choices to the Washington Redskins Monday for the negotiating rights for former Chaffey High star Jon Keyworth of Colorado.

A Bronco spokesman said the team planned to use Keyworth, who was selected by Hawaii in the World Football League draft, at fullback. The Ontario resident was Washington's sixth round choice in the National Football League draft.

Generation gap doesn't show

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — If there's a generation gap on the PGA tour, it doesn't show.

Sam Snead, a relic from another era, has only nice things to say about pro golf's so-called young lions and they're even quicker to compliment the old man in the straw hat.

"I think it's just fantastic that Mr. Snead is out here," said blond, 25-year-old John Mahaffey. "I think it's really great for golf. It's just too bad Mr. (Ben) Hogan can't be on the tour, too. That would really be something."

Added Tom Weiskopf, a young veteran of 31:

"Sam's got some kind of sweet swing at his age."

Incredibly, the 61-year-old old-timer of the PGA trail (he will celebrate his 62nd birthday May 27) was in a four-way tie for first place after three rounds of the $150,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open last weekend.

In a tournament he won in 1945 and 1950, Snead shot rounds of 73, 68, 66 and 71 for a 279 total, six under par, over the long and demanding Riviera Country Club. He finished in a tie with Mahaffey for second, two shots behind Dave Stockton, the winner.

He didn't win it but he came close. And he stirred a lot of memories.

"You know, these are real nice boys," said the man who won the first of pro record 84 tournaments way back in 1936.

"Why do I still play? Well, I still like to play and it's nice to get out and see the new kids who are coming along and see how the game is changing. I'll tell you, these kids today are really fine golfers. They're stronger and they're better putters than they were in my heyday."

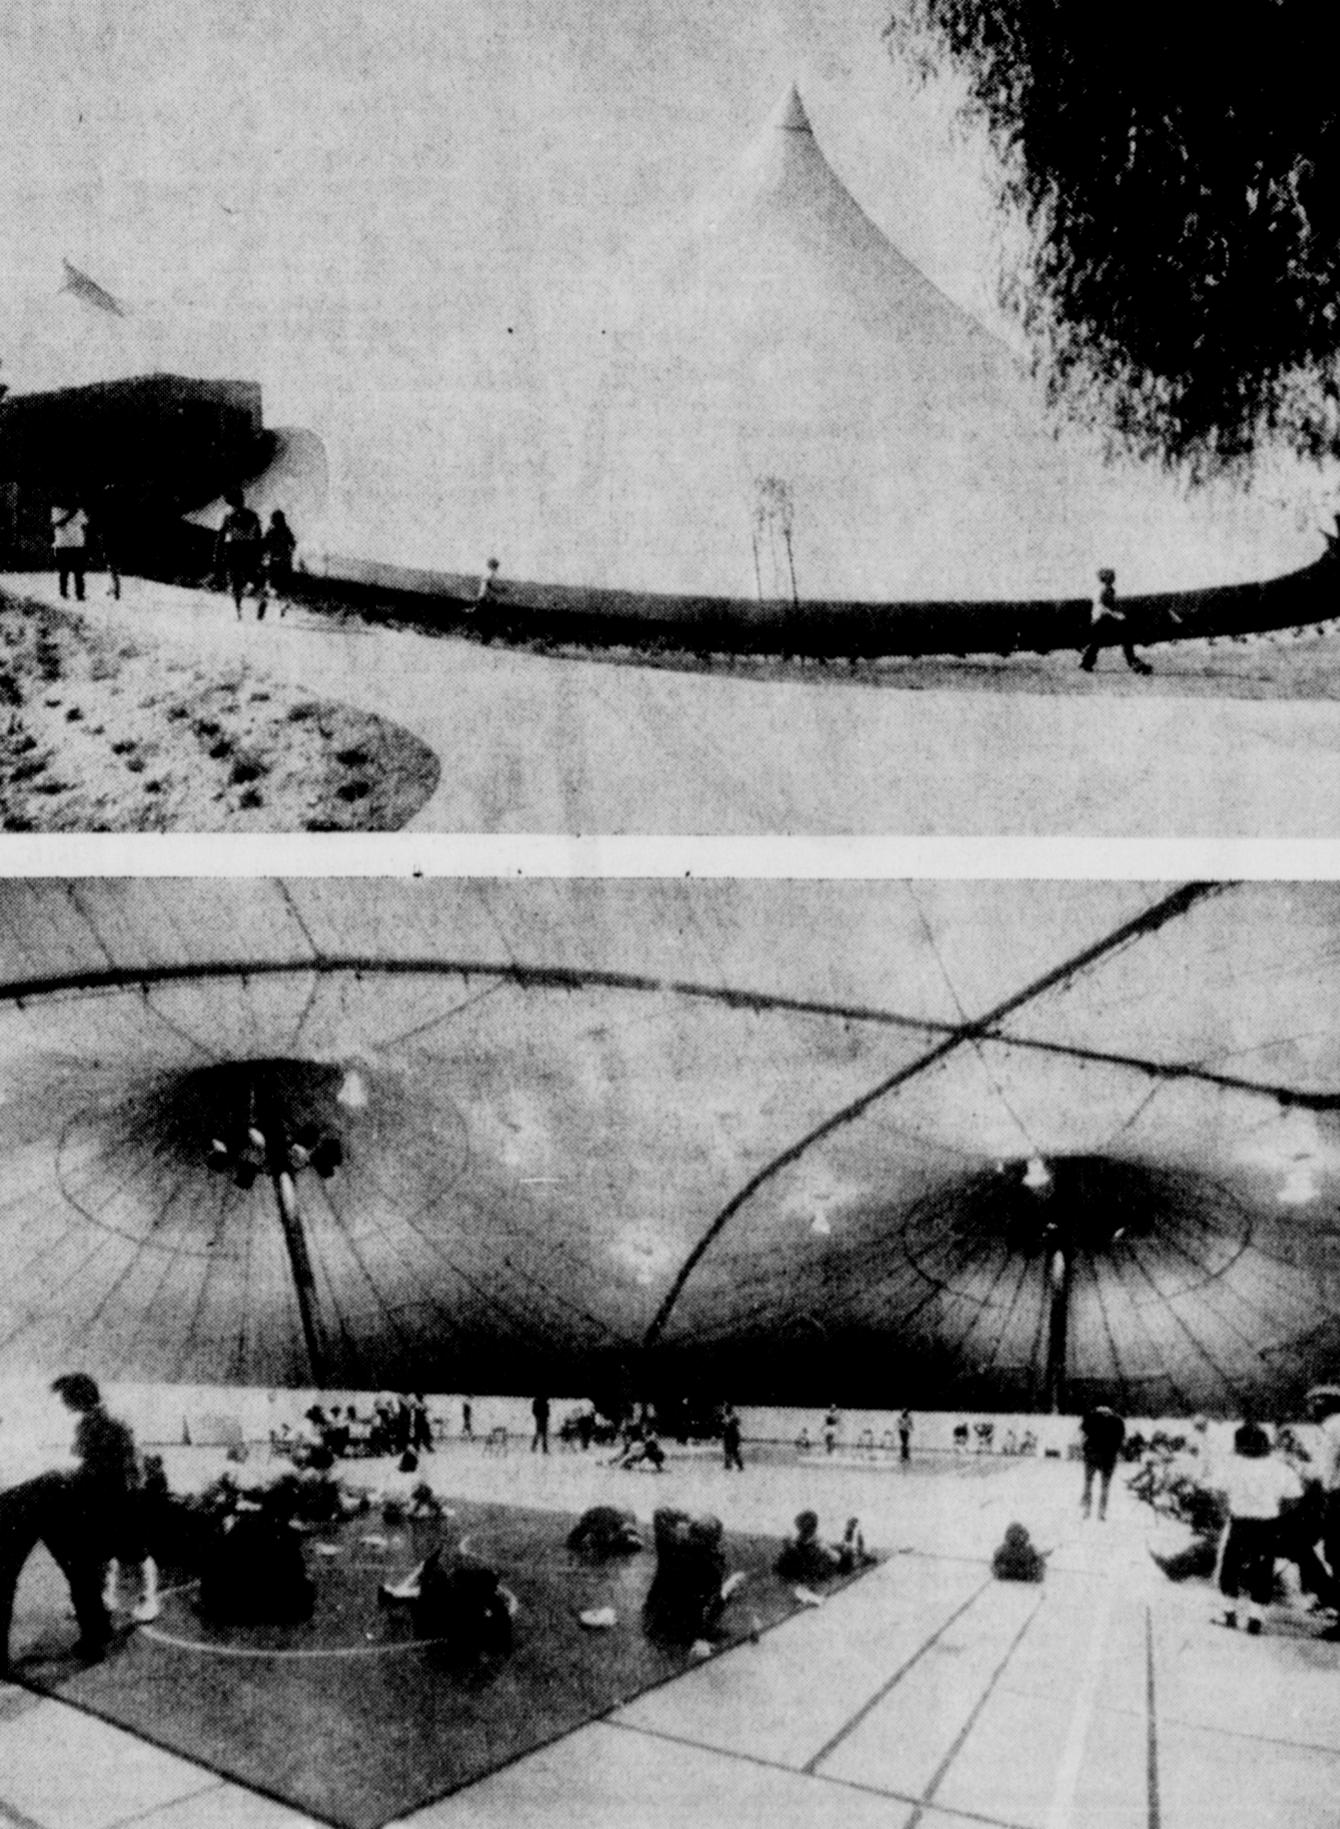

"These are very respectful kids, too. A lot of them call me Mr. Snead. I really enjoy being around them."

Lakers begin short journey

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Losers of six of their last eight games, the Los Angeles Lakers open a two-game road trip against the Kansas City-Omaha Chiefs tonight.

The Lakers, who trail Golden State by a game in the NBA's Pacific Division, are at Detroit Wednesday night.

They're home against Philadelphia Friday night.

WFL signs NFL player

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new World Football League today announced the signing of its first active NFL player, Richmond Flowers of the New York Giants, and said it also had signed a $5 million national television contract for its initial season.

Flowers, the Giants' starting strong safety and a five-year veteran, said he would play out his option this year and join the WFL's Honolulu franchise in 1975.

But, he said, his new contract hardly makes him an instant millionaire like some of the basketball players who have switched leagues.

"I think I have a very fair contract

(with Honolulu), but I'm not a wealthy man now, nor six figures," said Flowers who played in college at Tennessee and is also a world-class hurdler.

Flowers made his announcement at a news conference where officials also said they had signed the $5 million television contract with TVS, an independent network.

That figure is nearly three times the $1.75 million the American Football League received from NBC for television rights in its first season, 1960, but presumably inflation is responsible for much of the rise.

The TVS network will televise 23 games beginning Thursday night, July 18. The TV deal is broken into two packages with the "A" package consisting of 13 games telecast nationally over an anticipated network of more than 130 stations. The 13 telecasts will include eight prime-time games on Thursday nights, four late night games from the West Coast and the championship game on Friday afternoon, Nov. 29, the day after Thanksgiving.

The "B" package will be limited to stations in top markets, according to Eddie Einhorn, TVS president. It will consist of 10 games telecast each Thursday night from Sept. 12 to Nov. 14.

Kings hopeful of ending string

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings attempt to snap a three-game losing string tonight when they face the Vancouver Canucks, the last place team in the NHL East.

The Kings have three games this week, hosting the New York Rangers Thursday night. They're at Montreal Saturday.

Curt's not exactly sure of the figure, but he said he's shooting close to 51 per cent from the field this year — which isn't too shabby.

As for college, Oldenkamp hasn't made any definite plans yet.

"Although I'd like to play college basketball," he said, "it isn't my major concern. I'm more concerned about the academics."

Curt is planning on majoring in accounting, a good major for a guy who's always in double figures.

Vasquez pilots Astray to SLO win

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — "It was just like taking candy from a baby," said Jacinto Vasquez.

Vasquez piloted Astray to a four-length victory Monday in the second division of the $40,000-added San Luis Obispo Handicap at Santa Anita.

In the first division, Captain Cee Jay recorded a $20.20 upset, beating Court Ruling by three-quarters of a length and one-half grass event.

Vasquez, who has 33 victories after 39 days of the 75-day meeting, explained his strategy.

"I let him (Astray) drop back because I didn't want to be too close the first part of it," he said. "Then down the backside I got to the outside and let him get closer. I only hit him once and then waved the whip at him. He usually eases up when he gets to the front but today he kept on going."

Before a Washington's Birthday holiday crowd of 32,290, Astray was clocked in 2:24 2-5 and paid $6.80.

Scrantling finished second, Wichita Oil was third and Triangular, the 32 favorite with Don Pierce up, was seventh in the eight-horse field.

Santa Anita will resume racing Thursday with the $30,000-added Santa Catalina Stakes for 3-year-olds at a mile and one-sixteenth.

Sports parade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Those who keep clamoring for the President to be impeached remind Vice President Ford of some baseball fans he knows.

If he were the manager, he says, he wouldn't be influenced by them though.

He "wouldn't take the hitter out now—not this late in the game."

Usually that's when baseball managers make most of their changes, in the late innings, particularly when they're behind, and being as deeply sports-oriented as he is, the Vice President knows that as well as anybody else.

He still wouldn't yank Richard Nixon for a pinch-hitter, and talking of the analogy, he says:

"Suppose a good hitter pops up or fouls out in the first part of the game. Now it's the ninth inning and the score is tied. You don't take him out because he didn't perform earlier. You know he has the quality and you also know he has the experience under pressure."

Meaning the President?

"That's right," says the Vice President, who can also see an analogy in what UCLA coach John Wooden had to say—"the worst thing a coach can do right now is panic"—after his generally unbeatable Bruins dropped their second straight game the other night in Eugene, Ore.

"I agree with Johnny Wooden, you don't panic, and you don't lose your poise," says the nation's second-ranked executive. "Translate that into terms of our country and I don't think we have to tear our system apart."

Loves sports

The Vice President loves sports.

He was a football star for the University of Michigan in the '30s, having played center both ways, later coached at Yale and still follows football, baseball, basketball and hockey as well as most of the other sports.

"The first thing I do every morning is read the sports page," he says. "I read it before I do the front page because at least on the sports page you have a 50-50 chance of being right."

Gerald Ford smiles when he says that.

"I remember when I was a boy, I used to buy the Reach Baseball Guide every year. I'd study the averages, and still follow them today. Living in Grand Rapids, Michigan, I can remember how the Yankees would come up to play an exhibition game there sometimes."

I saw Babe Ruth hit a couple of home runs at Old Ramona Park. It's no longer there today. They tore it down."

"The Vice President wasn't merely another member of Michigan's football team, he was named its Most Valuable Player during the 1934 season.

Everyone knew him as plain old Jerry Ford then, and Joe Henshaw, one of his teammates, says nobody plugged any harder.

The late Lyndon Johnson, once asked what he thought of Ford, is said to have answered:

"There's nothing wrong with him except he played football too long—without a helmet."

The Vice President insists the remark didn't bother him.

"We checked it out with several newsmen and found he actually said it, but honestly it didn't disturb me. Lyndon could be very earthy, very abrupt. I was a thorn in his side I suppose because we fought him. When I first heard what he said, I really was amused, not upset."

By way of proving it, Ford, then minority leader in the U.S. House of Representatives, showed up at an annual Gridiron Club Dinner here one year dressed formal and carrying his old Michigan helmet.

"I never played without a helmet," he says. "I wouldn't be foolish enough to do that."

One other thing about Lyndon Johnson's crack.

"I know he didn't say it face-to-face to Jerry," says Joe Henshaw. "I don't think he'd have the nerve."

'Hawk's hits lead Chaffey in 8-5 victory

ALTA LOMA — Chaffey College erupted for eight runs and 10 hits while pitcher Gregg Baughman went the distance Monday afternoon as the Panthers beat Glendale, 8-5.

Chaffey exploded for six runs in the third inning and enjoyed an 8-1 advantage after six innnings in notching its fifth win in eight outings.

Dennis Hawkins, the hitting star of the day, collected two triples and was hit by a pitch while Ralph Valadez chimed in with two safeties and a run batted in. Mark Berrier had a double in two trips to the plate and drove in two runs while Mike Wolters added a two-bagger and a pair of ribbies.

Ganesha has a scoring threat of their own in David Segura, but the Giants will have to play better defense to stay with the Spartans.

In other action Wednesday, Chino will tackle Pomona and Webb is at Garey. The Cowboys still have a slim chance at a CIF playoff bid, but of course need wins in their final two league contests.

8% interest rate scarce

Q—I have $15,000 to invest in bonds that are government guaranteed. These bonds must pay a minimum of 8.5 per cent. Your help would be greatly appreciated.—E.H.

A—U.S. Treasury bonds and notes are trading to yield 5 per cent to 7.4 per cent currently, well below your income objective. World Bank Bonds, which are government guaranteed, are trading on a somewhat better yield basis, 6.4 per cent to 8.2 per cent. The higher interest rate is available on the August 1975 issue bearing an 8% per cent coupon. Another series of bonds which have government backing under the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, are issued by U.S. Lines. Two bonds: U.S. Lines 8.70s of 1989 and U.S. Lines 8.5% of 1991 trade above par to yield 8.45 per cent and 8.4 per cent currently, a rate of return more consistent with your requirement. Timely payment of principal and interest on these AAA-rated securities is guaranteed by the U.S. Government.

Q—Through a Keogh plan I have acquired 1,639 shares of Mass. Investors Growth Fund. I am retired and would like to switch to Mass. Investors Trust or Income Development for greater income. Would I be wise to wait for a better market to make the change?—C.M.

A—Since you are now retired, an exchange of mutual funds is possible. However, prior to that time Keogh plan allows the participant only to freeze one plan in order to start anew with another fund. Mass. Growth has an above-average 10-year performance record in the decade through 1973, although the 20 per cent decline recorded in 1973 was only average. The current yield from income distributions is 1.7 per cent. Mass. Investors Trust, while providing a 3.7 per cent return, has been more stable in both up and down markets.

For retirement income, Mass. Income Development Fund, currently yielding 8.3 per cent is a vetter vehicle. The exchange, as net asset value, would provide an annual return, based on the 1973 payment of around $1,465. Any capital loss or capital gain resulting from the disposal of your Mass. Investors Growth shares would be reported on your Federal income tax form for the 1974 tax year.

Wall Street Chatter

"The failure of stock price averages to register follow-through recovery peaks in late January is indicative of a slowdown in economic activity," according to Harris, Upman & Co. Portfolio managers and public investors are nailing down profits in issues which up to this time resisted selling pressures, the firm notes. "Monies generated from recent equity sales are not being reinvested in the stock market," it says. "Instead, fixed income securities are being sought as a defensive play."

Manufacturers Hanover Trust says "by cutting back on his use of credit, the consumer is signalling that a substantial slowdown in economic activities lies ahead." The fourth quarter of last year saw the smallest increase in the quarterly amount of consumer installment credit in a year and a half, the bank continues. "This measure of people's confidence, their willingness to expand their use of credit beyond growth in take home pay, has now fallen faster than at any time since the summer of 1969 — just before the last recession got underway," it adds.

"The market at present has a trendless pattern without any obvious leadership," says Dean Witter & Co. The vast majority of stocks are at support levels or neutral, the firm continues, indicating a short-term rally which could meet resistance in the 850 to 870 area. "Issues showing relative weakness should be sold in to the strength and for the present, the funds generated from these sales should be held for future investment," it advises.

Claim casualty loss
for a tax deduction

By RAY DE CRANE

If you had a loss last year resulting from an auto accident, robbery, burglary, a fire, storm or flood you may have an income tax deduction.

It can be claimed only if you file Form 1040 and are itemizing your deductions.

The insurance reimbursement, if any, is first subtracted from your actual loss. Then there is a further reduction of $100 from the remainder. The balance is fully deductible.

The loss is the difference between the fair market value immediately before the casualty and its market value immediately after.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

You can get complete details on how to save dollars on your 1973 income tax by following the step-by-step instructions in CUT YOUR OWN TAXES 1974, the book by Roy De Crane that tells all. Send your name, address and zip with check or money order for $1 plus 25 cents for postage and handling to Progress-Bulletin Tax Book, P.O. Box 849, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Allow three weeks for delivery.

In the case of a tree destroyed by lightning, or shrubbery ruined in a storm, the loss is the difference in value of the total property immediately before and immediately after the casualty. Cleaning-up expenses are part of the loss.

With one exception, losses are deductible in the year incurred. The exception is storm loss in an area designated as a Disaster Area by the President. In order that such taxpayers may obtain quick relief they may amend their previous year's return and claim an immediate deduction.

Appearance gets grades

Good-looking kids generally get pretty good grades. Bad-looking kids generally get pretty bad grades. But the best grades of all generally go to those mediocre-looking kids who wear glasses. No, that's not my notion. It's what the scholastic survey-takers say they found out recently.

The sailor of old let out line in lengths equal to the distance between his hands outstretched to full arm's length on either side of his body. That was the original linear measurement now known as the fathom. And it varied considerably with the sizes of the sailors. Or so says our language man.

Tattoo

Average tattoo takes 20 minutes.

Among recent inventions registered at the U.S. Patent Office is a cigarette package that coughs.

When completely grown up, a man is 19.3 times heavier than he was at birth. Or should be, at any rate. A woman, though, is only 17.3 times heavier than she was at birth. Normally.

Am asked who dreamed up the term "punch drunk" to describe that ailment among some professional boxers. One Dr. H. S. Martland was the fellow. In 1928. Was no such phrase in the medical books before then.

Catnappers

The three most famous catnappers in world history were Thomas Edison, Winston Churchill and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. Edison intermittently dozed on his workbench. Churchill dropped off from time to time in his desk chair. And Mrs. Roosevelt napped practically everywhere. In fact, once after Norman Thomas delivered to a large Madison Square Garden audience an introduction of Mrs. Roosevelt as the featured speaker, he then had to shake her awake on stage so she could take the podium.

The typical mother is said to receive $14.83 worth of gifts on Mother's Day. The typical father only gets $12.84 worth of gifts on Father's Day. Or so report the statistical experts. Is that equitable?

How smart are you about plate collecting?

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — A successful art dealer in this Chicago suburb has announced a new, easy way to start collecting rare porcelain plates with the potential of becoming heirlooms of the future with exceptionally high resale value.

According to Thomas Gilmore II, president of this dealership, one decorative "annual" plate priced at $25 in 1965 now brings $1,050, and one china plate selling at $10 in 1969 now sells for $245. In the past only a few fortunate people could afford to collect works of art, but now literally thousands of collectors with average incomes enjoy this fascinating hobby for fun and profit.

MR. GILMORE says, "Since many plates do not increase in value, amateurs often make serious mistakes. It's critical to know what to look for, what to pay, when to sell, and much more." Even if you have never collected plates before, there are little-known guidelines that tell you how to own plates of the finest porcelain designed by a distinguished artist for a modest outlay.

To help you get started in the rewarding hobby of plate collecting, the dealer now offers a new free report just off the press. It tells you how to look for good design, rarity, historic importance, and other important clues to selecting the right plates.

THIS FREE REPORT is available to individuals who wish to own beautiful handcrafted plates produced in America and abroad. It tells how you can be one of the first to own a stunning porcelain made in France for a surprisingly low price and lists other selections that could become tomorrow's treasured heirlooms.

If you seek a new hobby that could lead to extra spare-time income, here's your opportunity to find out about the wonderful world of collecting objects d'art. The dealer invites individuals (not dealers) to send for a free copy of this valuable and interesting report.

To get yours, just send your name, address, and zip code to Thomas Gilmore, Bradford Galleries Exchange, 1016N Sunset Ridge, Northbrook, Ill. 60062. A postcard will do. There is no obligation for this service. Because of limited quantities, please mail your request by March 1, 1974, to receive your free copy.

Will this plate multiply in value to 10, 15 or even 20 times its original price as other plates have done?

South looks over dummy and counts eight top tricks. He can make a ninth in diamonds if the suit breaks 3-2. He lets West hold the first trick. West continues the suit. East shows out and there is no chance for a second trick in diamonds. Now South needs two heart tricks and he is faced with a single suit play.

An end play might develop, but good discarding can stop that. Thus South will have to go after hearts himself. A simple finesse is a 50 per cent chance. (Acutely less on account of the diamond distribution, but still close.)

The deep-sea finesse of the nine gives declarer an extra chance. If it loses to the 10 or the jack declarer can still fall back on the simple finesse. This time it turns out that West holds both the jack and 10 so the nine forces the king and South has his ninth trick.

'Playboy of the Western World'

Cal Poly presents Irish comedy

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

POMONA — The Cal Poly theater arts department last weekend presented a funny, fast-moving and nicely textured production of J. M. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World."

The comedy will be repeated in the Studio Theater at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and the following weekend.

Director R. L. Gilbert has coached a beguiling group of young actors into an authentic representation of the County Mayo dialect, a performance that renders the accents and pronunciation deftly, and captures the musical lilt and rhythm of the Irish without self-consciousness or burlesque. 'Tis a foine job.

Steve Morris as Christopher Mahon gives a warm and humorous characterization of the artfully bewildered hero, a sort of Hibernian Tom Jones. Lowell Emerson draws a nice portrait of the boy's cantankerous father, Old Mahew. The star of the show is Emily Kronenberg as Pegeen Mike, a sprightly colleen with a warm heart and a sharp tongue. Miss Kronenberg achieves a three-dimensional portrayal charged with vitality and insight.

Monte Van Vleet, Terry Vreeland and Roy Conli bring convincingly to the stage three hearty, interesting countrymen. Barry Moore offers a funny characterization of the sly, timid Shawn Keogh, and Cassie McCarthy does well as Widow Quin.

Providing sturdy support are Barbara Drapkin, Robin Marie LaValley, Teresa Nielsen, Ellen Cochran and Ken Williams.

Aubrey Wilson's set is a thing of beauty, a small, moulded interior reminiscent of a painting by an old master. The imaginative set creates just the right atmosphere for the grubby carryings-on of the bucolic Irish community.

Students present Irish songs before the play, setting the mood for the audience. A program of Irish dances will be performed after the show Friday and March 1.

Egypt mapping huge plans for reopening Suez Canal

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt plans to begin clearing the Suez Canal, an idle ditch for the past seven years, as soon as Israel completes her scheduled withdrawal from the waterway on March 5, government officials say. They say it will take less than three months.

Eventually, they said recently, it would be deepened and widened to take supertankers of up to 250,000 tons passing from the Red Sea to the Mediterranean. Egypt expects to raise tolls and double its income but the question of whether Israeli ships can use the canal depends on the future peace talks.

Minister of Reconstruction Osman Ahmed Osman says the United States, Russia, Japan, Britain, France and Italy, as well as oil-rich Arab nations, have offered to help finance the clearance and development of the Canal. Clearance alone will cost about $90 million pounds ($225 million) and the government already has appropriated an initial 15 million pounds ($37.5 million).

Suez Canal Authority sources say it has contacted a large firm in several countries, including Yugoslavia, Italy, Denmark and Greece, which are interested in helping with the work.

The military disengagement agreement between Egypt and Israel last month following the October war, enabled Egyptian planners to dust, review and update the plans for reactivating the waterway. Israeli forces are pulling back from the west and east banks of the Canal to a new line deep in Sinai.

From June 5, 1967, when the 101-mile long Canal was blocked as a result of the third Arab-Israeli war, to October 5, 1973, the waterway served as a barrier and cease-fire line between Egyptian troops on the west bank and Israeli occupation forces on the east side.

On Oct. 6, 1973 the Egyptians successfully crossed it to storm Israeli lines, establish two considerable bridgeheads in Sinai and create new realities in the Middle East conflict.

According to present plans, army engineers, explosives experts and frogmen will be Forced into life jacket

Captain tries to go down with ship

SANDY HOOK, N.J. (UPI) — The crew and passengers aboard a sinking fishing boat forced the captain into a life preserver Sunday when he apparently wanted to go down with the 51-foot charter craft. The captain died despite efforts to save him but the other 11 persons aboard were rescued.

Leonard Salkin, a Maplewood, N.J., marina operator who aided in the rescue, said Capt. Herman Grothues, 67, "told one of the survivors he just didn't want to live. They all put life preservers on but he fought it off. Finally the mate forced it on him and one of the passengers held him."

The Leonia, N.J., captain, who skippered the Zephyr II, was pronounced dead on arrival at the John F. Kennedy International Airport medical center in New York. A passenger, Peter Thompson, 32, of Edgewater, was reported in critical condition at the Long Beach, N.Y., hospital.

The mate and the nine other passengers were treated and released at two Monmouth County hospitals after being picked up by another boat, the Falcon out of Atlantic Highlands, authorities said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Coast Guard said the boat began taking on water in the engine compartment about noon. The engine became disabled and the ship sank about 15 minutes later.

The ship's first mate, Richard Bulvid, 26, of Bayonne, said that when the ship began to sink, Grothues acted "like a typical captain. He didn't lose his cool. He was just very calm."

Bulvid said the captain didn't leave the ship, then almost submerged, until sending out a Mayday message to the Coast Guard.

Salkin and Bulvid agreed that the 38-degree water and rough seas probably caused Grothues' death.

"You hit that water and you haven't got a chance," Salkin said. "You've got about 30 seconds to survive in that water. The reason the others survived is that they've got a lot of meat on them."

Although nine passengers and Bulvid managed to swim to the Falcon, Grothues and a passenger had to be pulled from the water by a Coast Guard helicopter.

Before the ship sank Grothues tried not to excite the passengers, who had been fishing for ling and whiting, according to Bulvid.

"As a matter of fact, the passengers were below and he said, 'Fellows, want to come up we've got a little problem,'" Bulvid quoted the captain as saying.

"There are no words to describe him," Bulvid said. "He was a pleasant man. The cream of the crop."

Patricia Hearst treated 'roughly'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A voice specialist said Friday kidnap victim Patricia Hearst apparently has been subjected to "rough treatment" since she was first abducted by the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Dan Mallicoat, a tape recording analyst who examined a copied recording of Miss Hearst's voice sent to her parents, told newsmen, "There is an indication that she has received some degree of rough treatment since the time she was first kidnaped."

Planners to study manufacturing zone

WALNUT — Planning Commissioners Wednesday night will discuss creation of a new commercial-manufacturing zone in the city.

Other topics on the 7:30 p.m. session's agenda include review of development plans for Calle Gaja, tabled at the panel's last meeting, and review of a county zoning ordinance regulating open space and open residential development.

Turkey lifts ban on poppy growing

ANKARA (UPI) — Turkey has decided to bow to demands from its unemployed poppy farmers and lift a 13-month-old heroin ban imposed at the request of the United States.

A government spokesman said Thursday Foreign Minister Turhan Gunes told U.S. Ambassador William Macomber the decision was made to ease the financial plight of Turkey's 70,000 poppy growers.

"One part of mankind cannot be driven to despair to safeguard another part," the newspaper Hurriyet quoted the foreign minister as saying.

The announcement did not say when the ban would be lifted or whether the government might reconsider its decision if the United States offered to step up compensation payments to farmers.

Court fines dealer offering member fee

PORLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A service station operator who charged a membership fee as a precondition for gas purchases was fined $500 in Federal Court here Monday.

The fining of William Busenbark, owner and operator of Bill's Exxon station, was for his violation of a court order enjoining him from charging the membership fee.

He was found guilty of contempt of court. Busenbark, his employees and agents had been enjoined in a previous hearing.

Try to smuggle drunken parrots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contraband parrots, drunk on Mexican tequila, were stuffed in old socks and hidden in a secret compartment of a car.

The Treasury Department, which runs the U. S. Customs Service, told about it Saturday in reporting a seizure on the Mexico-Texas border.

The customs officers turned the smuggled, car and birds (drunken) over to Agriculture officials."

Student loans may be changed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Faced with $167.5 million in defaults on student loans, the administration has proposed modifying its student loan guarantee programs to make the loans more attractive to banks and possibly discourage some of the defaults.

U.S. Education Commissioner John R. Ottina told a House education subcommittee Friday that students who received loans would be responsible for paying 7 per cent interest annually while in school. The government could give grants covering the interest if a student showed sufficient need.

Economists predict zero-growth in '74

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The effects of the energy shortage will cause the economy to operate at near zero growth in 1974, according to a group of business economists.

The economic slowdown that has already begun will not degenerate into a recession if the oil embargo is cleared up later this year but the cost in inflation and unemployment still will be uncomfortably high, they said.

The forecast, which hedges on the optimistic side of the range of projections for 1974, was issued Thursday by a panel of economic consultants at the winter meeting of the Business Council.

Jordan gets latest U.S. tank missile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has begun supplying Jordan with its most modern antitank missile, a type first supplied to Israel only 16 weeks ago, according to Pentagon officials.

The missile is called the TOW — for tube-launched, optically-tracked, wire-guided. It is the newest type of antitank weapon for use either by ground units or from helicopters.

The United States used it with considerable success in Vietnam during Hanoi's 1972 offensive. The first foreign army to get supplies of the missiles was Israel, which first received them in the U.S. airlift during last October's war but reportedly used them only briefly before the war ended.

Officials said the TOWs would be given to Jordan under the military assistance program.

Ford feels nation over hump on gas

LONDON, Ky. (UPI) — The nation is probably "over the hump" that would require gasoline rationing, Vice President Gerald Ford told a news conference here Wednesday.

Ford, who said he was flatly opposed to gasoline rationing, said the nation had shown it would rather wait in line to get gasoline than wait in line at the post office for rationing stamps to buy gasoline."

Here for a $10-a-plate GOP fund raising dinner, Ford said the nation was in a position now to shift refinery activity away from the production of fuel oil to the production of gasoline.

"I don't believe we will have to have rationing," he said, "particularly if there is some favorable development on the embargo on oil by Arab nations."

When it comes to your baggage, we really move our tail for you.

That's our business.

Making sure that your baggage gets on the plane and off the plane as fast as possible. Without getting damaged or lost even when you transfer to another Continental flight or to another airline. From check-in at curbside to your final destination, we promise that your baggage will get the best possible care and attention.

Which is where Byron, Paul P., Jim, Dick, Onie, Ernie, Paul D. and Lenny come in (and we've got 912 others just like them). Chances are you'll never see these guys. But you'll certainly know they were around.

For, behind the scenes, Continental's ramp crews are hustling like crazy to get the right bags to the right spot so that you can get going.

We do it in quick time too. Sometimes so fast they'll be ready and waiting by the time it takes you to walk to the baggage claim area.

Of the thousands of pounds of luggage we check in a single day, it's Continental's proud claim that less than 1% of it has been lost or damaged during the past year. That's barely—excuse the expression—a dent in a fine record.

Next time you plan a trip, plan on coming with us.

In the air, our flight crews will give you the best service you ever had on a plane. Backstage, on the ground, our super-efficient ramp crews will really move their tails for you too.
